

OVERTIME WORK DURING BUSINESS EXIGENCIES

1. Policy Statement

The Company recognizes that in certain circumstances, operational continuity and business demands may require employees to render overtime work beyond the normal working hours. This policy establishes the conditions under which overtime work may be required during business exigencies while ensuring compliance with applicable labor laws and regulations.

2. Coverage

This policy shall apply to all employees of the Company who are covered by the provisions on hours of work under the Labor Code of the Philippines.

Employees who are exempt from overtime provisions under applicable laws shall be governed by the relevant legal provisions and company policies.

3. Definition of Business Exigency

For purposes of this policy, business exigency refers to urgent or exceptional circumstances requiring employees to render work beyond regular working hours in order to maintain business operations, protect company assets, or ensure service continuity.

Business exigencies may include, but are not limited to:

- Sudden increases in workload or operational demand
- Deadlines critical to business operations or client commitments
- Emergencies affecting business operations
- Technical or system failures requiring immediate resolution
- Situations requiring the prevention of loss or damage to company property
- Circumstances necessary to ensure the delivery of essential services to clients

4. Circumstances When Overtime Work May Be Required

In accordance with the Labor Code of the Philippines, employees may be required to render overtime work in the following circumstances:

- When the country is at war or when any other national or local emergency has been declared.

OVERTIME WORK DURING BUSINESS EXIGENCIES

- When it is necessary to prevent loss of life or property, or in cases of imminent danger to public safety.
- When urgent work must be performed on machines, equipment, or installations to avoid serious loss or damage to the employer.
- When work is necessary to prevent loss or damage to perishable goods.
- When the completion or continuation of work started before the eighth hour is necessary to prevent serious obstruction or prejudice to business operations.
- When overtime work is necessary to take advantage of favorable weather or environmental conditions where the nature of work is dependent on such conditions.

5. Authorization of Overtime Work

Overtime work during business exigencies may be required by the Company when necessary for operational continuity.

Supervisors or department heads may authorize overtime work when operational circumstances require employees to extend their working hours.

Employees are expected to comply with authorized overtime assignments unless there are valid reasons that prevent them from doing so.

6. Compensation for Overtime Work

Employees who render overtime work shall be compensated in accordance with the applicable provisions of the Labor Code of the Philippines and relevant regulations issued by the Department of Labor and Employment.

Overtime work performed beyond eight (8) hours on an ordinary working day, rest day, or holiday shall be compensated at the applicable overtime premium rates provided under the law.

7. Limitation and Monitoring of Overtime

While overtime work may be required during business exigencies, the Company shall endeavor to ensure that overtime is reasonably managed and does not adversely affect the health, safety, and welfare of employees.

Departments shall monitor overtime utilization and ensure that overtime work is justified by legitimate operational requirements.
