4. Detailed Policy

4.1 What is Social Media?

Social Media is a type of online media that expedites conversation, which just does not deliver content but allows readers/viewers/listeners to participate in the creation or development of the content.

This interaction can be as simple as asking for comments or letting one vote on an article, or it can be as complex as recommending actions to others based on the ratings of other people with similar interests.

Here are some examples of common Internet social media websites:

- Social Networking. (Twitter, Facebook, LinkedIn, etc) interact by adding friends, commenting on profiles, joining groups and having discussions.
- Social Photo and Video sharing. (YouTube, Flickr) Interact by sharing photos or videos and commenting on user submissions
- Wikis (Wikipedia, Wikia) Interact by adding articles and editing existing articles.
- Blogging (Yahoo and Google Groups)
- Social Bookmarking. Interact by tagging websites and searching through websites bookmarked by other people
- Social News. Interact by voting for articles and commenting on them
